Acknowledgements

KHEAA would like to thank the student models of Danville High School and the following colleges, universities, and state agencies for providing their photographs for use in KHEAA's publications:

A composite image featuring a classical building with a prominent clock tower and a portico with columns. The building is set against a dark night sky filled with stars and a bright comet streaking across the upper right. The building's architecture includes a red brick clock tower with white clock faces and a white portico with several columns. The scene is framed by dark, leafy trees on the left and right sides.

Introduction

We've decided that it was time for a change and we're giving Getting In a new look this year. However, all the same information regarding higher education opportunities in Kentucky that students, parents, and guidance counselors have always relied on will remain intact. The Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA) has been providing this publication for 29 years, every year updating it with information provided by Kentucky admissions and financial aid officers, state agency officials, financial aid program administrators, and testing service representatives.

Getting In is easy to use. Chapter 1 provides general information and guidelines you'll need to begin planning for education or training after high school.

Chapter 2 is devoted to student financial aid—money to help you pay for higher education. You'll find helpful information on how to help finance your college education, what kinds of financial aid is available, and how you can qualify. You'll also find useful tips and answers to frequently asked questions.

Chapter 3 contains information on colleges, universities, community and technical colleges, and trade schools. This can be a very important source in choosing which college fits your needs and how much it's going to cost. There's a wealth of information here so take the time to look over the different schools and see what each one has to offer.

We hope that you find this publication a good source of help as you plan for your future. Please let us know if you have any questions or suggestions.
